"Supreme Question."

Under the caption, "The Supreme Question," the Editor of The Lexington Herald in an editorial, Tuesday morning, discusses the tobacco situation in Kentucky, and urges Governor Willson to "call the Legislature together, specifying in his call but one object—the enactment of laws which will make the detection and conviction of such criminals (night riders) speedy and certain, making the whole tobacco situation one of peace instead of war."

Editor Breckinridge says in part: "The murder of Hiram Hedges in Nicholas county, the burning of barns in Woodford county, the poisoning of cattle in Fayette, the widespread depredations committed by 'night riders' in every part of the tobacco-growing district, have put the question of preservation of law beyond and above all question of the price of tobacco, or even the question of whether any tobacco shall be grown. It were infinitely better for Kentucky that not a pound of tobacco should ever be grown than that present conditions should continue. It has got beyond the question of tobacco or no tobacco; beyond all question of Equity or non-Equity. The conditions in Kentucky have reached a stage where the preservation of social order, the existence of civil liberty, the very life of our civilization is at stake."

"The situation as it now exists bears promise of guerilla warfare and civil strife which will surpass in ferocity and cruelty the conditions brought about during the Civil War."

"To-day neighbors' hands are at neighbors' throats. No man seems to be safe from attack by midnight assassins and incendiaries. The cowardly hands which go in force to the home of a Kentuckian to administer the lash are at heart murderers, being prepared to commit murder to attain their object. Those who go under the cover of darkness, with their faces masked to set fire to their neighbors' property are as much assassins as is the individual or individuals who fired the shot that made the wife of Hiram Hedges a widow and his children orphans."

"The law seems to be helpless; the officers of the law powerless. This condition is intolerable. And yet it is but a Sabbath day in May as compared to what will come unless it is stopped. But it can be stopped only by the joint action to the citizens themselves and the officers of the law."

"Those who committed the crimes must be discovered and punished, or there will be a saturnalia of crime in Kentucky from which she will not recover in this generation."

Mr. Bryan and Minnesota.

The following editorial is taken from the Omaha World-Herald:

"Complaint is made by the enemies of Mr. Bryan, including those alleged Democrats who mean to oppose him when he is nominated, because he does not 'permit' Governor Johnson to have the unanimous support of his home state in the Denver convention. It is plausibly asserted that it would be only ordinary fairness and courtesy on Mr. Bryan's part to concede Minnesota to Minnesota's distinguished Democratic Governor. It is to be hoped that none of Mr. Bryan's friends will be deceived by this sophistry."

"In the first place, neither Mr. Bryan nor any other man is in position to dictate to the Democrats of any State whom they must support. All that Mr. Bryan or anybody else is entitled to ask is that if Democrats are for him they instruct for him; if they are for somebody else let them instruct for somebody else. In either case, the rank and file must say for themselves what candidate they want. Mr. Bryan has said that if the Democrats of this country want him for their candidate he is ready to serve them. He has made no demands in his own behalf; it would be just as improper for him to issue commands to his friends—and that is what it would amount to—in behalf of somebody else."

"In the second place, the Johnson candidacy in Minnesota is only a part of the plan of Mr. Bryan's enemies. If Mr. Bryan should bring pressure on his friends to concede Minnesota to Governor Johnson because Minnesota is Governor Johnson's state, there would soon be a 'favorite son' candidate in most, if not all the States. And the same argument used in Minnesota would be used to bring it about that every State instructed for its own 'favorite son' candidate. This would result in chaos at the Denver convention, out of which the enemies of true and popular Democracy might hope to bring their sinister designs into shape and being."

"Mr. Bryan is too well acquainted with the enemy to be caught by any such trap. If the Democrats of Minnesota want Johnson let them instruct for him. If they want Bryan let them instruct for Bryan. The question to be considered not alone in Minnesota but in every State is not where a candidate hails from but what he stands for. A candidate's ideal, associations, interests, sincerity, are of far greater moment than his geographical location. It is undoubtedly a realization of this fact that leads many Democrats in Minnesota to desire Mr. Bryan's nomination rather than that of Governor Johnson. Under the circumstances it would be an act of poor Democracy to seek to induce them to desist from the contest."

LIVE STOCK AND CROP NOTES

—The estimated value of dairy products for 1907 was $800,000,000, and that of poultry $600,000,000.

—Eggs are coming to market very freely, dealers shipping liberally to eastern markets. Prices range from 11½ to 12½ cents per dozen.

—C. P. Cook, the grocer, made a shipment of 3,000 dozen of eggs Monday to the Pittsburgh market. Eggs are coming in freely and the cash price per dozen has declined to 11 cents.

—Red clover seed is selling at $12.50 per bushel, while Alsike clover seed is bringing $13. One bushel of the former will sow from 6 to 8 acres, while of the latter will cover from 12 to 15 acres, the seed being smaller in size.

—Baled hay is selling at from $11 to $12 per ton. The crop of last year was a large one and much hay is being exported. Since January 1, Stuart & O'Brien, of Paris, have shipped out 75 car loads, mostly to South-eastern Kentucky and Virginia.

—Western buyers are in the market in Bourbon for jack stock for breeding purposes and are making liberal offers. Thomas McHatton, of Baldwin, Ill., bought of J. W. Young his premium two-year-old jack for $1,000 and offered Thomas McClintock & Sons $1,200 for a three-year-old jack, which was declined.

—Very few cattle on the market at Winchester Court Monday, and most of them of very common quality. Buyers and sellers were apart and very few sales were made and most of them were by the head. Among these were the following: R. B. Hutchcraft, of this city, bought a yoke of oxen, 1,900 pounds, at $3.35, and another yoke of 2,000 pounds, at 4 cents.

—Messrs. McClintock & Sons have purchased of Mason county farmers twelve horses, for which they paid from 100 to 175 per head; four horses and five mules of Bath county farmers costing from $150 to $200, and sold to Charles Thompson, of Lexington, fourteen mules at from $170 to $200 per head. The same firm sold to W. T. Overby a pair of five-year-old mules for 375 and a pair of three-year-old mules to George Wagner for $300.

—The Mt. Sterling Advocate gives the following report of court day sales in that city Monday:

About 2,000 cattle on the market. The quality was common. Trade was good and prices high. The best steers sold at 4½ cents, and some sold by the head, which brought 5 cents. Yearlings 4½ to 5 cents. Heifers at 3½ to 4 cents. Cows at 3 to 4 cents, with f 1 ones at 4 cents. Bulls at 3 cents, old cows and rough oxen at 1½ to 2 cents. Big crowd in town and plenty of buyers at the pens. Most of the stock sold by night. Between 250 and 300 mules in town. Trade was good and a great many sold during the day. Sixteen hand mules sold at $185 to $200; 15 hand mules of good weight, $100 to $175; 5 hand mules at $115; small mules a $100 to $125. Horses about as usual. Among the prices were the following: A yoke of 2,500 pounds oxen at 4½ cents; ten yearlings, 600 pounds, at 4½ cents; 14 700 pound steers at 4 cent; a yoke 2,200 pounds oxen at 4½ cents; three steers, 900 pounds, at $4.40; 5 cows, 900 pounds, at 3½ to 4 cents; 10 steers, 775 pounds, at 4½ cents; a car load of old cows at 1½ cents; ten steers, 900 pounds, at 4 cents; ten cows, 900 pounds, at 3 cents; six rough oxen, 1,000 pounds, at 2½ cents; three steers, 300 pounds, at 4½ cents; lot of fat cows, 1,000 pounds, at 4 cents; fourteen cows, 800 pounds, at $3.30; eight heifers, 650 pounds, at 4 cents; eight oxen, 1,000 pounds, at 4½ cents.
